Lunch & Dinner Menu

The Whales are back...

From May, giant humpback whales start their annual migration from the cold Antarctic seas to their breeding & calving grounds in the warmer tropical waters of the Pacific. They travel up to 2500km in pods of 2-4 whales.

The whales head north along the East Coast of Australia, passing Newcastle on their way.

After giving birth, the whales and their calves make their way south in the months leading up to November.
