

Boston Restaurant Talk

September 23, 2020

By: Marc Hurwitz

UMV: 20,448

Wednesday, September 23, 2020

The Dial Opens at 907 Main in Cambridge's Central Square

A brand new restaurant has come to Cambridge, and it opens within a new boutique hotel.

As reported here earlier, The Dial opens today within 907 Main on the eastern edge of Central Square, with the ground-floor restaurant including an indoor dining area, a bar, and an outdoor patio. The Facebook page for the dining and drinking spot mentions that it will feature "eclectic food and drink" with its small plates and main dishes having global influences while classic cocktails will be offered along with beer, wine, and cider. The Dial will be open for lunch, dinner, and a Sunday brunch, with breakfast service coming at some point in the future.

In addition to The Dial, 907 Main will also be home to a rooftop bar called the Blue Owl, a second location of Praline (its original location is in Belmont), and Toscanini's Ice Cream, which had resided in this space before the hotel was built.

The address for The Dial is 907 Main Street, Cambridge, MA, 02139. Its website can be found at <https://thedialcentralsq.com/>

[Earlier Article]

Boutique Hotel Near Cambridge's Central Square to Include The Dial, The Blue Owl, Praline, Toscanini's

by Marc Hurwitz (Also follow us on Twitter at @hiddenboston)

###

<https://bostonrestaurants.blogspot.com/2020/09/the-dial-opens-at-907-main-in.html>